{mosimage cw=100 popup=true}Wow, can it be true?! In a recent conversation between ZZone and Mike Montgomery, one of the original Bitmap Brothers, Mike announced that he rejoined with John Phillips, one of the original programmers to work on Z again.

First thing they're gonna do is converting Z to run under Windows XP. They will also rewrite the complete network code so it will be easier to play Z over the internet. So the "new" Z:XP will address the mos tpressing issues of the community making it playable in the todays common WIndows XP and Internet environment.

Also Mike told the ZZone that after that they are planning on a real sequel of Z, the original game. Jeez, that will make a lot of gamers happy.

The ZZone will keep you posted.Â
